

Shelley Anklan

CENTRO CAMPESINO, INC.

OWATONNA, MN

SUPERVISOR: JESUS TORRES

Centro Campesino is a non-profit rural development corporation which supports economic self-sufficiency to improve the quality of life for migrant and seasonal farmworkers and their children.

- Worked on grant writing and fundraising activities
- Researched Migrant Worker Policy in other states in order to move similar legislation in Minnesota
- Contributed to the creation of a parent curriculum

“Farm worker legislation has proven to be quite complex... I’ve spent tow full days researching laws state by state, and I have realized the necessity for expanding legislation that protects farm workers in the U.S. Organizations such as Centro Campesino try to empower farm workers to take action for themselves, but I think it is also necessary for others to act as advocates for those workers who might not be able to fight against the systematic exploitation they face.”

Shelly Anklan